

Mass Plantation Drive under “EK PED MAA KE NAAM 2.0” Initiative at New Campus LUVAS on July 29, 2025

Under the visionary directions of Worthy Vice-Chancellor a grand mass plantation drive was successfully organized today at the New Campus of Lala Lajpat Rai University of Veterinary and Animal Sciences (LUVAS). The event was held under the guidance of Dr. Sajjan Singh, Director Student Welfare (DSW-cum-EO) and coordinated by the vibrant Pranvayu Club, which has been actively spearheading environmental sustainability initiatives in the university.

The plantation drive was a part of the “EK PED MAA KE NAAM 2.0” program and today about 800 saplings were planted across the New Campus. Speaking on the occasion, Dr. Sajjan Singh, emphasized, “Every sapling planted today is a promise to our future generations. LUVAS is committed to leading by example in environmental conservation.”

Dr. Pawan Kumar, Director IPVS, appreciated the remarkable enthusiasm of the Pranvayu Club members and highlighted that such drives foster environmental responsibility among students. He urged all participants to ensure the proper care and survival of each sapling planted. Dr. Gulshan Narang, Dean COVS lauded the collective efforts of students and staff for their active participation in nurturing a greener tomorrow.

The event witnessed wholehearted involvement from officers of the University, HODs, faculty members, students and non-teaching staff. With spades in hand and smiles on their faces, volunteers planted saplings across designated areas, symbolizing growth, care, and sustainability. Dr. Deepika, President, Pranvayu Club, LUVAS expressed gratitude to all volunteers, students, and staff for their overwhelming support and active participation. This plantation drive has not only enriched the green cover of the New Campus but also set a benchmark for student-led environmental action at LUVAS.
